

Why should I choose Organic cat or dog food?

There are many good reasons to choose organic, and much discussion about the health benefits of organic food. The key factors which have influenced us to make OrganiPets pet food from organic ingredients include:

Organic Farming helps care for wildlife and the environment

Sustainability is a key part of organic farming. Harmful pesticides and fertilizers are routinely avoided. The UK government has said that Organic farming is better for wildlife, causes lower pollution, produces less carbon dioxide and less harmful residues.

Organic Farming promotes the health and wellbeing of animals

Organic farming has the highest standards of animal welfare. The animals have a good life with good living conditions, including access to the outside and plenty of space to move around. Also the animals are not given growth promoters. They are only treated with drugs when their health and well being demands it. They will then be withdrawn from the production system, typically for three times longer than on non-organic farms.

Organic Farming holds High Food Standards and Quality

All Organic farms are inspected annually and the standards they must meet are laid down in European law.

Organic food helps health

While it would be foolish to claim that organic food alone will make someone healthier, it is common-sense to suggest that if the food we eat has had less chemicals used in its production, there will be less residues in the end product. Recent studies have suggested that on average organic food contains more essential minerals and cancer fighting antioxidants.

Lifelong health

OrganiPets complete dog food with Organic fresh free range chicken, rice and herbs is naturally delicious and is made from the finest quality ingredients.

Vets tell us that organic fresh chicken is ideal for your dog as its very gentle to their digestive system. We also use Organic rice as it is the most easily digestible cereal. This allows the nutrients to be easily absorbed, so your dog gets the most organic goodness from them. And for the ultimate in dog appeal we delicately season with organic herbs. Delicious!

As we want the best for your dog we don't add ingredients such as beef, pork, wheat and wheat gluten, that can cause allergies. These can make dogs suffer from loose bowels and skin irritation. As we don't use any of these our food is hypo-allergenic. We also don't add any nasty unhealthy additives, colours or preservatives.

So at OrganiPets we take organic, natural wholesome ingredients and cook them together gently so they don't lose their goodness but are deliciously crunchy.

OrganiPets is proud to be made in Britain. We support British farmers and minimise transport pollution by sourcing our ingredients as locally as possible. We also believe in making life better for cats and dogs that fall on hard times, so we support an animal rescue.

OrganiPets cares about your dog, the environment we live in and how we do business so we are proud to be an accredited ethical company

OrganiPets is enjoyed everyday by adult dogs of all breeds. We're sure your dog will love it!
